SUMMARY

As a seventh-semester student of computer science and engineering, I am especially interested in front-end programming as well as expanding my understanding in full-stack technologies. Building intuitive online experiences while continuously improving my technical expertise through feasible projects and internships are two subjects I enjoy and am passionate about.

PROJECT

I am currently developing a yoga-focused web application as part of my academic and professional growth while pursuing my college education. It is a platform for virtual yoga instructors that aims to make yoga more approachable and interesting for users. With the help of online resources and self-directed learning, I'm determined to keep improving my knowledge and abilities in order to advance this project.
